We Pledge Anew

An alumnae magazine has many publics.

The bulk of our readership, of course, is that widely-distributed body of women — and some men — who have attended Wesleyan College. Over 8000 of these are living, mostly in the United States, but some have found their work and their interest in distant, oft-times troubled areas of the world.

Today we are aware that "troubled areas" are not confined to far-off places like Vietnam and Czechoslovakia. There is a plethora of problems in our own country, in the big cities, on the farms, even in the microcosms known as universities and colleges. Flip a dial or a printed page and your eyes and ears are struck with a barrage of words on the revolt of youth, now graduated from passive resistance and protests in campus newspapers to destruction of property and to bloodshed.

It is an editor's duty to its publics — be they alumnae, trustees, faculty, seniors, parents or other friends of the college — to tell the truth, unglossed and unvarnished. This has been our policy always, and we will make an even more searching effort in the year ahead. If we have problems we must share them and attempt to solve them together.

College has been defined as a place to search for truth through free inquiry. Wesleyan prides itself on its free intellectual atmosphere. It attempts to attract competent, dedicated faculty and staff, a student body with a high degree of maturity and responsibility which can be nourished by the college experience.

Wesleyan allows — nay, encourages — dissent, peaceful protest, free inquiry and discussion, says her president. Wesleyan does not condone disruptive demonstrations, destruction of property, or violence, nor do we anticipate that our students will be involved in such tactics.

At Wesleyan, as at all American colleges, needs have soared with the rising cost of everything. Alumnae can help with student recruitment and with finances, for, as President Strickland says, "Our strength of purpose, our bonds of mutual respect, our sense of community are stronger than ever."

With the new season we pledge anew to help Wesleyan and her values to endure.

If the above numbers were fed into a computer they would come out "Alumnae Weekend at Wesleyan".

"This is new, our coming together in March, instead of at the end of May. It is experimental. We hope you'll like it," says Jane (Mulkey) Green, '42, Atlanta, our alumnae president. "We hope you'll turn out in great numbers, not just reunioners, but everyone who can get away — no graduations or confirmations to conflict, no exams or grading for our teacher alums. Rufus is coming — why don't you bring your husband, too?"

"Students will be on campus", says Nina (Sheppard) Terrell, '58, Macon, first vice president in charge of program. "Won't that be fun? And we're planning a wonderful program — the beautiful and glamorous actress, Eugenia Rawls. She's played with the Lunts, makes talking books, — gave a program at Lincoln Center, in New York, in October — and she's our very own, class of '32. Better mark your date book for March 28-29!"

Trustees Accept Survey

THAT WESLEYAN MIGHT ENDURE

The October 31 meeting of Wesleyan's board of trustees was spent largely in deliberation of the future of the college.

"This may be one of the most critically decisive meetings the board has had in its one hundred and thirty one years", said President W. Earl Strickland in his annual report.

"The year 1967-68 was among the best ever for the first college chartered as a college for women," he said, "but significantly the end of the (fiscal) year finds the college engaged in making tremendously challenging plans for the future."

Dr. Strickland pointed out several historic achievements of the year, such as completion of the new Lucy Lester Willet Memorial Library and the graduation of the largest senior class (130) in the history of the college. He commented on steady progress in many areas of the life of the college, also that alumnae are continuing to assume outstanding leadership roles.

"But perhaps the most significant aspect of this report concerns the plans for the future," he said. "The board of trustees, at its meeting on May 9, 1968, agreed that additional sources of income, primarily endowment income, must be secured if the college is to continue to provide a program of exceptional quality. The board decided that professional counsel would be needed for a thorough survey of our possibilities."

Marts and Lundy, Inc. of New York, were engaged by Board Chairman Reginald Trice and his committee, Tom Greene, Frederick Wilson, President Strickland, and Robert Wys, new director of development. Their representative, C. Wellmann Brown, spent several weeks in August in Macon and other cities of Georgia and Florida, gathering information to be presented to the board on October 31.

November, 1968

"One of the continuing problems of Wesleyan, as at many colleges, is the lack of budgetary resources to pay faculty salaries that are truly competitive on a national level," said President Strickland. "In spite of eight consecutive years of salary increases averaging close to eight percent per year, Wesleyan's position relative to other institutions is not significantly better than it was several years ago. To secure such resources becomes Wesleyan's prime need."

"In 1971 the college will celebrate its 135th anniversary", state Marts and Lundy in their survey report. "Among its 3,300 graduates and 4,800 other former students, there appears to be a surge of concern for further strengthening Wesleyan in those ways which will insure its future educational and financial stability."

The trustees appointed a building committee to draw up plans for remodeling Tate and Candler buildings, the latter to include the alumnae center with its Wesleyana Room.

NEW TRUSTEES

Leo B. Huckabee, Jr. (top), president of Macon Chamber of Commerce, and Ernest Vandiver, Atlanta attorney who served as governor of Georgia, 1958-62. His daughter is a freshman. Martha Zachry Thwaite, Atlanta, is new alumnae trustee.

NEW YEAR LAUNCHED

A new president was elected for our country, three astronauts orbited the earth in further conquest of Outer Space, bombing was halted, and Wesleyan College began its 130th year of history this autumn of 1968.

By now the Freshmen are completely orientated, the trustees have met, the Great Green Knights are full of the thrills of their recent Homecoming, and the grand adventure of learning is launched and well on its way.

Registration on September 15 ushered in a week of orientation for new girls, with Dr. Bernard C. Murdock as chairman. A meet-your-minister picnic, tests, auditions and conferences climaxed in a talk by Alumnae Director Whitehurst on November 5 on "The History and Traditions of Wesleyan."

Special events included the President's reception at Bradley Hall on Turner Acres, September 19, when President and Mrs. Strickland were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Dorothy Dicks, acting dean of women, and the housemothers; also the alumnae sponsors' tea on the 22nd. One October night five buses came to take the girls to Atlanta to a gala Tech dance.

"The prettiest freshman class ever!" several sponsors declared.

"And equal in quality to last year's record class of 233", said Admissions Director Allen Sanders. "They are even more homogeneous, more closely grouped in abilities than last year's class."

They represent 17 states and one foreign country, Indonesia, (Other classes have students from Japan, Hongkong, Mexico, and Vietnam). Marilino Kawira is sponsored by the First United Methodist Church Commission on Missions of La-Grange, Ga. Carol Cummings' father is stationed in the Phillipines; Sherry Senna lives in London, where her father is a lieutenant colonel.

Two of last year's graduates are replaced by freshman sisters, Cindy Rogero and Marcia Witham; a former governor sent his daughter, Beth Vandiver; a kinsman of Adlai Stevenson, Candace Stevenson, is a freshman. Her father commands a U.S. Air Base in Bermuda.

Deborah DeLoach, graduate of American High in Taipei, has a dad in the Pentagon (Lt. Col.); Isobel Zeller, born in Germany, lived in Ecuador. Martha Conner, sister of Nancy, a junior, takes flying lessons, and Susan Wyllis, sister of Sylvia W. Boone, '60, is a harpist of distinction.

In a Y program of grace in foreign tongues, at Wednesday lunch, two new girls offered the prayer in sign language, having worked as interpreters for the deaf in their church. They are Chris Everett and Sonya Tomlinson.

Beth Kent, Star Student of Jackie (Davis) Richardson, '60, at McEvoy High in Macon last year, spent the summer in Holland on the Experiment in International Living Program. Beth, who is majoring in art, has studied several languages, attended the Governor's Honors program at Wesleyan in '67. She came to Wesleyan on the McEvoy scholarship of the Macon alumnae. She is a Pierce Scholar and Freshman editor of the Veterropt. For four weeks she lived with a Dutch family as outbound ambassador of the Macon Experiment group, travelled in Europe, and hopes some day to study abroad again.

"NOTEBOOK" IS SUCCESS

Other campuses may cradle "anarchists" (though less than 5% participated even in demonstrations), but Wesleyan students have evinced a remarkable sense of responsibility, said President W. Earl Strickland on the Wesleyan Notebook TV program, September 26.

Interviewed by Elaine Whitehurst, alumnae director and program planner-moderator, he explained that because of their responsible attitude, students are granted the right to invite outside speakers, and censorship is not imposed on student writings.

The program was prompted by a resolution passed at the last meeting of the Association of American Colleges concerning the rights and freedoms of students.

"Many think of college students as children, and fear that their minds may be contaminated," said Dr. Strickland, "but they are more intellectual than most who are off campus. The average students, as well as educators, want to get facts; we invite speakers not always to applaud them, but to learn."

This past year Wesleyan was one of the few colleges in the nation presenting a regular educational program over commercial channels. Through the generosity of WMAZ-TV the 30-minute full-color "Notebook" ran for 37 Sundays, treating a variety of subjects and featuring the Wesleyan family. Reception was so favorable the college was invited to continue during the 1968-69 school year.

"Wesleyan students are truthful; they despise hypocrisy. This is the outstanding characteristic of today's students. Even the motivation of the original 'hippies' was a revolt against the hypocritical standards of middle-class American life, and its crass materialism.

"Students mirror home attitudes, even in rebellion. They are daring and always have been willing to try anything, from swallowing goldfish to crowding into telephone booths. But I believe they have not thrown overboard all moral restraints, nor has the average American citizen. The changing pattern of moral standards is reflected on campus. It may show up more boldly on campus, for this is where the daring young are concentrated."

Students are legally adults — they can vote and they can fight, said Dr. Strickland, discussing control of students' political and other involvements. "Very few parents can make their children do — or think — as they wish them to, and realize the College cannot do what they cannot. Too strenuous action drives the young away; they must be led through proper influence, through reasonable, logical persuasion.

"I hope that colleges like Wesleyan, a small, liberal arts college in a quiet place, can continue", he said.

"In years to come, in great metropolitan centers, colleges will be scattered over the city, broken into units, with classes, perhaps, in factories and commercial centers. They will be for all who have completed high school for the rest of their lives; they will serve every type of person, demanded by all in the electronic age we face. Much education will be vocationally oriented, much devoted to keeping up with the times, to broadening horizons. There will be a greater use of machines — learning machines, electronic computers and so forth."

Professors, however, he believes, will never be replaced entirely by machines, for "there is something mystical, magical between student and teacher." With colleges in a period of expansion, however, there is not enough faculty to go around. As the cost of living has risen, colleges, including Wesleyan, have doubled faculty salaries in the past ten years. Even so, their skills make teachers valuable as consultants and for scientific research.

"No college can compete with industry and government", said Dr. Strickland.

Dean James, also on the program, spoke of the more complex campus of the future, of the lack of communication at today's big universities. The trend is to break into smaller units. As for grading, students may be encouraged to learn not for grades — and get none — but for the sheer joy of learning. Colleges try to create an intellectual atmosphere so that students want to learn, he said.

Many women today want to go back to college, commented Dr. Strickland, so that they will not stagnate. He told of the Danforth Foundation, which offers special opportunities for women with children, also the Radcliffe Institute for part-time work on advanced degrees.

Jane Cary (Chapman) Peck, '53 who earned her MA in '57 from Boston U, is one of the 25 New England women awarded fellowships by Radcliffe Institute under the program started last year.

Jane, working toward the PhD in Christian ethics and sociology, plans to enter college teaching. Her husband, Robert, is director of physical education and athletics at Boston U.

HISTORY FROM STONES

By
Beth O'Neal, '61

When Pierce Chapel burned down in 1963, seven tablets commemorating early fathers of Wesleyan College had already been removed. These marble stones were placed in the ground floor entrance of the new Lucy Lester Willet Memorial Library and their elegant chiseled scripts hold the key to much of the history of Wesleyan of the Nineteenth Century.

The story of these men continued through their descendants and is alive today:

REV. LOVICK PIERCE, D.D.

BORN MARCH 24, 1785

DIED NOVEMBER 9, 1879

Seventy-five years a minister of the Gospel; Forty-three years a trustee of this College.

He was the friend and benefactor of woman.

This tablet is erected in honor of his memory by the faculty and students of Wesleyan Female College.

Lovick Pierce was, in all ways, the "grand old man" of Wesleyan, from the time it was chartered in 1836 and began as Georgia Female College in January, 1839, until his death forty years later.

He was born in North Carolina, but migrated with his family through South Carolina into Georgia. Graduated from a medical college in Philadelphia, Lovick's first love was the Methodist Church. After practicing medicine for five years in Georgia, he left that profession for the ministry.

As a young man, he met, fell in love with and married Ann Martin Foster, the daughter of a prosperous farmer, George Foster, of Greensboro, Ga. Ann's brother, Thomas Flournoy Foster, was a member of the United States Congress.

From the union of Ann Foster and Lovick Pierce, eight children were born that grew to maturity. The oldest and best known was George Foster Pierce. He was twenty-six years old when he became the first president of Georgia Female College. His father served with him on the first board of trustees. Surely the knowledge and wisdom George F. Pierce gained as a young man in the education of young ladies must have served him well when as Bishop Pierce he was called upon to be spiritual guide for thousands.

"Descendants of Bishop Pierce's only son, Lovick, were publishers. His son Walter was head of Methodist Publishing House, in Richmond, Va. Walter's son, Lovick, is head of Methodist Publishing House in Nashville, Tenn.

The children of Lovick Pierce shared with him his love for Wesleyan. Upon his father's death, Thomas Foster Pierce, one of Lovick's younger sons, was elected to fill his father's place as a trustee. Wilds Lovick Pierce, the oldest son of Thomas, was elected at his father's death to the board of trustees. For twenty-five years he served on Wesleyan's board. His funeral was held on the day that the new campus at Rivoli was dedicated. Alfred Mann Pierce, the youngest son of Thomas F. Pierce, was elected to fill his brother's place on the board. Alfred was Editor of the WESLEYAN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE at this time.

Bishop Pierce's oldest child, was one of the founders of the Adelphean Society, which was later to become Alpha Delta Pi Sorority. Ella Pierce married John Turner, of Sparta, and had ten children: George Foster Pierce Turner, Carrie (Mrs. Richard Wilson), Julia (Mrs. Robert Smith), Thomas (who lived in Indian Territory), Ella (Mrs. Seago), John Turner, Jr., Ann (Mrs. Stuart Davis, of Macon, mother of Eloise Davis Culverhouse, '15), Ethel (Mrs. Dudley Williams), May (Mrs. John O. Moore), and Joe Warren Turner. John Turner, Jr., married Nell Gardner, and they had five sons: John III (Jack), D. Abbott Turner, Francis, Joe, and Harold.

D. Abbott Turner, long-time trustee of Wesleyan, Columbus, Ga. business man, married Betty Bradley. Their children are Elizabeth Bradley Turner, now Mrs. Lovick Corn; Sarah Louise Turner, now Mrs. Clarence Butler, and William Bradley Turner, whose wife is Sue Marie Thompson, '50.

Thomas Foster Pierce's two daughters, Linnie and Julia matriculated at Wesleyan, as did all of the daughters of their brother, Wilds Lovick Pierce. Two daughters of Wilds were graduated from there, Pauline Pierce (Mrs. Ernest Corn, Macon), in '18, and Zula Pierce in '25. Lucile was a student. Mrs. Corn was presented the Distinguished Achievement Award by the Wesleyan Alumnae Association in 1967. Miss Zula Pierce is presently director of the Young Women's Christian Association in Richmond, Va. Their brother, Dr. Lovick Wilson Pierce, is a urological surgeon in Waycross, Ga., married Julia Bell, '31, of Augusta. Esther is Mrs. P. C. Maxwell, of Elberton, Ga.

The descendants of Lovick and Ann Foster Pierce are spread throughout Georgia and the South. Ann America Pierce, one of their daughters married Launcelot Gambrill and moved to South Carolina. A branch of the family remains there. Descendants are too numerous to mention but they have been mainly doctors and preachers. A sampling of them turns up: Dr.

WOMAN OF THE YEAR

Mrs. Clarence C. Butler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Abbott Turner, Columbus, Ga., was cited for her work with Historic Columbus Foundation. "The selection of tiny, dynamic Mrs. Butler as Woman of the Year is the latest in a long line of civic honors." She is here with her granddaughters, Worth and Clare Williams.

Frank Schley, Jr., a pediatrician in Columbus; D. Abbott Turner, prominent Columbus business man; Mrs. John Culverhouse, Macon; and Miss Jane Maxwell, Ph.D., Mt. Holyoke, who has distinguished herself in the field of chemistry.

The name of Lovick Pierce is still revered. He was "the first agent for the Wesleyan Female College . . . a man of most enlarged views, he sought to provide for the elevation and refinement of woman long before her claims were felt or admitted by the other sex."

WILLIAM CAPERS BASS, D.D.

JANUARY 13, 1831 —

NOVEMBER 15, 1894

He served the college faithfully for thirty-five years, being its President twenty-five years, and loving it as his own life until the end.

Before coming to Wesleyan in 1859, William C. Bass was a professor at the Madison Female College at Madison, Ga. He taught natural science at Wesleyan until 1874, when upon the resignation of Dr. E. H. Meyers, he was appointed president. During a time of great financial upheaval, Dr. Bass and another member of the faculty, Cosby W. Smith, found it necessary to lease the college to continue its operation.

Dr. Bass married Ann Octavia Nickelson, of Greensboro, Ga., and from this marriage three children lived to adulthood. The oldest was a girl, Amelia Maria (Minnie) who was graduated from Wesleyan in 1874. While on a trip to Philadelphia, Minnie's father was called back to Macon because of the resignation of Wesleyan's president, Dr. Meyers.

During the years Dr. Bass was associated with Wesleyan, his family lived in the college building. Richard F. Burden, a young Macon businessman, courted and married Minnie Bass in the Adelphean Room at Wesleyan. The furnishings of this room are preserved in the Judge Asa Holt house, Macon UDC museum.

From the union of Minnie and Richard Burden three children were born: Eugene Bass Burden, Alice Cobb Burden (Mrs. I. L. Domingos) and Octavia Burden, Thomas J. Stewart, her husband, was a Wesleyan trustee. Both Alice and Octavia were graduated from Wesleyan and were members of the Adelphean Society. Both received Alumnae Awards for Distinguished Service to Wesleyan. Alice was Alumnae Trustee.

Alice had four children: Isaac Leroy Domingos, Jr., a graduate of Wesleyan in music, and Richard Burden Domingos, Macon businessman; Ann Maria Domingos, a Macon school teacher; and Alice Burden Domingos, director of student aid at Wesleyan, both girls Wesleyan graduates.

Julian Pierce Bass, oldest son of Octavia and William Bass, had one daughter, Lillian Jefferies Bass, a 1918 graduate of Wesleyan. Lillian married Dr. Guy Byers of Salem, Ohio. Their daughter, Mary Byers Howett, attended Wesleyan and now lives in London with her family.

William Glover Bass, Dr. Bass' youngest son, married Claudia Taylor of Macon and they had four children, William Capers Bass, Georgia Ellen Bass, Amelia Maria Bass, and Martha Bass.

The children of William C. Bass are Sonia, Brownie and Bowman, the latter two still living in Macon.

Georgia Ellen Bass married H. T. O'Neal, of Dublin, and their children are Dorothy O'Neal Townsend, Norfolk, Va.; Ellen O'Neal Peters (Mrs. Vincent I.) Macon; and Martha O'Neal Searcy (Mrs. A. D.), Macon. Upon the death of Georgia, H. T. O'Neal married her younger sister, Amelia Maria Bass. Their children are H. T. O'Neal, Jr., a prominent Macon attorney, and Claudia O'Neal Alston (Mrs. F. R.) of Macon. Claudia was graduated from Wesleyan in 1949.

Martha Bass married James E. Corbin, of Macon. Their two children are James, Jr., of Charleston, S. C. and Martha Corbin Banks (Mrs. Ray), of Macon.

THE ALUMNAE HAVE ERECTED
THIS TABLET IN AFFECTION-ATE REMEMBRANCE OF
REV. OSBORNE LEWIS

for nine years a professor of this institution, and who died at Oxford, Georgia in the 59th year of his age.

Scholarly, conscientious, genial and sincere, his pupils loved and honored him.

REV. COSBY WILLIAMSON
SMITH, D.D.

BORN AUGUST 25, 1825
DIED APRIL 5, 1888

For thirty-six years he was professor of mathematics and astronomy in the college — patient, loving, gentle, Christlike — he was the model teacher and consecrated minister idolized by his pupils.

This tablet is a slight testimony of their love.

Osborne and Cosby Smith were brothers from Greene County, Ga., who taught at Wesleyan. Osborne taught languages from 1850-54, when he was elected president, a position he held until 1859. During the Civil War he served in both the House and Senate of the Georgia Legislature. In 1871 he became president of Emory, at Oxford, a flourishing school for young men. Cosby Smith remained at Wesleyan. He was graduated from Emory with highest honors in July, 1849, and was president of the Greensboro Male Academy until January, 1852, when he became professor of mathematics at Wesleyan. He married Fannie Lundie, of Virginia, and five of their children lived to maturity.

Walter G. Smith, the oldest son, married Ann Willburn and they had one son, Eric, a businessman of St. Louis, Mo.

Lucian W. Smith married a Miss Winters of Atlanta. Howard, their only child, never married.

Cosby, Jr., married Lucy Key, the daughter of Bishop Joseph Staunton Key. Their two daughters, Susan and Frances, both attended Wesleyan. Susan married Harry Jobes, of Kansas City, a close friend of Harry Truman. Frances has an administrative job with Rogers Hall, in Lowell, Mass.

J. Lundie Smith had three children, Cosby, III, Leila and J. Lundie Jr., a Valdosta, Ga., lawyer. Leila attended Wesleyan, as did her daughter, Leila Ricketson Zahlon, of Beirut, Lebanon.

Howard, the third child of Fannie and Cosby, never married.

Fannie Smith was an older sister of Lucy Lundie Lyndon, the mother of Andrew J. Lyndon, a prominent Macon business man. Fannie's sisters, Clyde, Mary and Lucy, were all Wesleyan graduates. Mary received her degree from Wesleyan and went on to become the first woman to graduate from the University of Georgia and the first Dean of Women of the University. Lucy's daughter, June Bocock (Mrs. Branch), of Williamsburg, Va., attended Wesleyan and her son, Andrew, married a Wesleyanne, Annie Miller, of Macon.

While Cosby taught at Wesleyan, his wife often visited her family in Newnan. Cosby was no Samuel Pepys, but he managed to record the tempo of his times in his letters to Fannie. After attending a soiree that the faculty of the Medical College (in Macon) gave on their commencement day, Cosby wrote to his wife: "They had a very fine supper, speeches, etc., but I was disappointed and mortified to find that they had wine, which many of them seemed to drink with an appetite. Anderson Wright was there—he and I went into another room and talked—leaving the drinkers to themselves."

REV. EDWARD HOWELL
WHO DIED IN THE CITY OF SAVANNAH,
A MARTYR TO DUTY,
SEPTEMBER 26, 1876

As a professor and president of this college, he did noble work for the elevation of woman.

His former pupils have erected this tablet as an expression of their appreciation and love.

Edward Meyers was born in New York in 1815 but was raised in Florida. After serving as a professor at Wesleyan, he became president in 1851 and resigned in 1854 to accept the editorship of the SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. He returned as president of Wesleyan from 1871-1874, when he again resigned, this time to accept the pastorate of Trinity Church in Savannah. While visiting in the North in 1876, news reached him that Savannah had been stricken with yellow fever. He returned to Savannah to administer to his flock and died himself of the fever.

Very little is known of his family or descendants. Dr. Herbert P. Meyers, his son, was a leading minister in South Carolina. One of Edward Meyer's granddaughters became a missionary to Korea.

THIS TABLET IS ERECTED IN MEMORY OF
JAMES A. EVERETT
FOR A GENEROUS DONATION TO THIS INSTITUTION
A. D. 1845

During the depression of 1843-44, both the city of Macon and Wesleyan (Georgia Female College) were bankrupt. The College Street property was lost and Mr. Everett's generous donation that is referred to in the tablet enabled the college to regain the property. The college had been called Georgia Female College until this time, but it was re-chartered as Wesleyan Female College. No interruption occurred in the school's program.

James Everett was a wealthy citizen of Fort Valley. As a young man he had lived among the Indians, acquiring vast tracts of land that extended from the Flint River to the Ocmulgee. In 1835, he married Mary Beaufort Greene. Six children from this union lived to marry:

James, Jr., married Josephine Rumph, of Houston County.

Henry married Julia Elder, of Perry.

John married Mit Brown.

Sarah Liza married James Flewellen and moved to Texas.

Theodosia married the Rev. Robert Holland and lived in Virginia.

Elizabeth married Ben W. Sanford and lived in Crawford County, Ga.

From these marriages many, many children were born. A few of the descendants of James Everett living today are: John Laurence Brown, Jr., Fort Valley; Josiah Everett Flournoy, Macon; Adele Flournoy George, Macon (Mrs. Richard); Malcolm Edwin Everett, Jr., Macon; Virginia Everett Walker (Mrs. B. Sanders, Jr.) Macon.

REV. JOHN MITCHELL
BONNELL, D.D.
BORN APRIL 16, 1820
DIED OCTOBER 1, 1871

For three years a professor in the Wesleyan Female College and subsequently for twelve years its efficient and devoted President. Exalted in all that constitutes true manhood, he was a finished scholar, a peerless teacher and a guileless Christian.

This tablet is erected to his beloved memory by those alumnae who enjoyed the benefit of his pious example and noble instructions.

Born in Bucks County, Pa., this Yankee professor was president of Wesleyan during the Civil War. Bonnell had been a professor at Wesleyan for some years before he was elected president, a position he held from 1859-71. He managed to keep the school open during the war and told the board of trustees only a few days before his death that he felt 1871 to be the most successful of all his years. Reconstruction of the school had been completed.

Bonnell and his wife, Mary Ann Morton Bonnell, had a daughter Susie who attended Wesleyan. Their eldest son, William Bramwell, was elected professor of physics and chemistry at Wesleyan in 1894, a position he held until his death. Previously, William had spent ten years in China at Shanghai as a professor in the Anglo-Chinese College.

Seven marble tablets stand in memory of seven men important to the history of Wesleyan College. Many of the descendants of these men are still active in the life of Wesleyan today.

For Daniel Fund

The J.W.W. Daniel book fund continues to grow. "August 19 is Mr. Daniel's birthday and I want my Loyalty Fund this year to go to the library fund in his memory," wrote Susan Magette, '38, Charleston, S.C.

Names Make Library News

In the new Lucy Lester Willet Memorial Library bronze plaques were installed during the summer in appreciation of contributions toward the fund for building the new facility.

Main or second floor was designated by the Trustees "Katherine P. Carnes Reading Room". The charging desk is marked "Class of 1966, in appreciation", and the door to the Librarian's office "In Memoriam, Mrs. Annie Bates Haden, by Mr. and Mrs. Willaford R. Leach."

"In Memoriam, William Dickson Anderson, Jr. by Mrs. McKibben Lane" is inscribed on the plaque on the door to the listening room. Also on third floor the Conference Room is marked "In appreciation, Class of 1967."

Three faculty studies on the first floor bear plaques: "Honoring Mr. and Mrs. Washington Dessau," "Honoring Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Ingle by Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Jolly", and "In Memoriam, Mr. Charles Elihu Nadler by Mrs. Freda K. Nadler." Three similar studies are available for plaques.

The assistant librarian's office, "In Appreciation, Macon Civic Club", and an index table marked "In Memoriam, Miss Katherine Johnson", are both on second.

On the third floor the Soong collection has been started, with a catalogue planned. Hanging on the walls of this section are the oil portrait of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, a painting by her of flowers on silk, and the embroidered panels of the four seasons which she presented to the college, and which formerly hung in Dr. Strickland's outer office.

Hightowers Name Library for Kin

The name Hightower made library news when on Sept. 29 the George A. Harrison Library was dedicated at Thomaston, Ga. Julian T. Hightower, grandson of the principal of Robert E. Lee Institute, for whom the library is named, gave the land; the building, complete with equipment and landscaping, was a gift of Community Enterprises, Inc. Thomaston Mills foundation of which Mr. Hightower is board chairman. His wife (Grace Laramore, '20, trustee of Wesleyan) furnished the George A. Harrison Memorial Room in the main entrance. Speaker at the dedication was Dr. W. Earl Strickland, president of Wesleyan. Wesleyan's newest dormitory is named Hightower Hall in honor of these generous supporters of education.

RARE BOOKS WANTED

Some time next spring Wesleyan's library collection will reach its 75,000th volume. To celebrate this attainment a gift of old, rare, valuable books will be presented by a group of alumnae. Do you have such a book that might be included? Please write to the Alumnae Office.

VISITING ALUMNAE

IS REWARDING

By
Elaine Whitehurst,
Alumnae Director

To visit Wesleyan Alumnae wherever they are is to see living proof of what Nelle Edwards Smith said in a recent letter to the Class of 1934: Wesleyan's mission, she wrote, is "to train to 'be', rather than just 'to do.' " I, myself, have sensed the results of this training many times when I talked with alumnae in Atlanta, in Macon, and in Florida.

One of the highlights of this summer was the trip down to Miami for the American Alumni Council Meeting in July. Driving down, we stopped in Quincy, Fla., for lunch at the home of Julia Munroe Woodward, to talk about the Bequest Program for her class.

Later that afternoon, Miss Lucy Lester was our hostess in Tallahassee; alumnae present were Matilda Dodd Trawick '50, Rebecca Dodd Hollady '51, Mary Lewis, and Dr. Sarah Ivey '31. Of course, some of the conversation was "Remember when . . .", but much of it too was on such subjects as "What kind of programs does Wesleyan have in the Sociology Department?" "Where do most of the current graduates go when they finish Wesleyan?" "Do we have a Junior Year Abroad program?"

Two of our biggest Wesleyan boosters were visited in Lakeland: Miss Catherine Craig, who recently retired from teaching Latin and who remembered everything about Macon as vividly as if she still lived there; and Miss Loulie Barnett who had been kind enough to gather together many Wesleyan mementoes for the Wesleyana Room when it is completed.

Our last stop was in Arcadia, Fla., where we visited Miss Ves Parker. The highlight was hearing about a recent visit Miss Parker had had from Madame Kung, and about the times these classmates had when they were students at Wesleyan.

Back in Macon, in September, almost a hundred wonderful Macon alumnae came out to the college to meet members of the freshman class, whom they had volunteered to "sponsor" through this first year away from home. Sherry Staples Hubbard was the alumna who had assumed the monumental responsibility of securing the sponsors, then matching them with freshmen roommates. The Macon club officers acted as hostesses at the tea, with Ann Lavendar Faulk as chairman.

October brought a totally unique experience for us: speaking to approximately 75 alumnae in one group in Atlanta, Group VIII, all of whom were graduated during the '60's. Their annual banquet was held at Sweden House Smorgasbord Restaurant.

After Dr. Strickland's presentation of "What's Happening at Wesleyan," it was interesting to hear the varying viewpoints of alumnae. Even though they were graduated within a nine-year span, the generation gap was making itself felt when one alumna admonished the president: "Young people rebel against authority, whether it's from their parents or the college administration, but they still hope that authority is wise enough to know when not to surrender to their demands," followed by a graduate of the class of '68, who said one of the things she had always appreciated about Wesleyan was that it was run for the students of today, not the students of yesterday.

Alumnae have also been having meetings on their own: one in the Palm Beach area for present students, given by Jane Fenn Foster; another in Jacksonville, with Annette White King as hostess, and one in Columbus, Ga., with Margaret Cantrell Isaacs as hostess. Actually, Mrs. Isaacs was also acting in her capacity as the mother of a present Wesleyan student, and wife of the president of the Wesleyan Parents Club. In Atlanta, the Alumnae gave a party for students, with Betty Jo Hammock Boyes and Sarah Curry Jones in charge.

As you'll see in the Loyalty Fund Report in this magazine, we now have at least one alumna in every state! We would like very much to have at least one active alumna, well-informed on Wesleyan as it is today, to talk with any students from that area who might want some first-hand information about the school before applying.

We were happy to learn from Evelyn Davidson Allen that she has moved to Dallas, Texas, and is willing to do anything needed in that area, and from Brenda Withrow Nachman, '65, that she is living in Columbus, O., and would be willing to "perform any functions I can for Wesleyan" in that area.

Encouraging the interest of students in Wesleyan today is one of the greatest services any alumna can perform, and certainly one of the finest means of expressing gratitude for her contribution to our lives. If YOU would like more specific information on what the academic program of the school is really like today, we would be genuinely PROUD to tell you!

IN TALLAHASSEE

IN LAKELAND

Loulie Barnett displays an hibiscus bloom to Elaine after donating Wesleyan mementos for the Wesleyana Room.

IN PALM BEACH

Three at party at Jane Fenn Foster's ('53) for returning and entering Wesleyan students are Carole Richardson, Lynn Bense, and Glenda Harkins. Carole spent her junior year at the U of Lyons, in France.

Attention

Reunion Class Presidents!

Please secure your own Macon class contact to help your classmates with their motel accommodations. We will send you an up-to-date address list from the Alumnae Office shortly after Christmas, that you may contact your classmates. Forward, March!

Three decades and five years ago the class of '34 was graduated. In 1969 they will have "come of age", mature women, members of the Bequest Reunion Class.

"But in the secret heart of each of us lives a girl's dream", writes Nelle (Edwards) Smith in a brochure mailed to each member of her class. She remembers how it was described in the 1934 Veterropt:

"Having come out of a dream of beauty and culture, Wesleyan, like old Greece, has an ideal for each student — that of a full, noble, and beautiful life."

The dream, she writes, is ageless because of ideas accumulated as her classmates "were touched with the spirit of the liberal arts, the humanities, in the atmosphere of cherishing and nurturing that was Wesleyan."

"Because of that unique experience", she claims, "we have much in common with the young of today. We know their longing, their eagerness, their reaching to make their vision of a better world become reality. . . ."

"Because we are responsible people, we cannot deny the special privilege that we enjoyed to those girls of the future who may miss becoming whole individuals unless we concern ourselves with their need. . . . Those women to come are truly the hope of the world. . . ."

"We must be sure to help some girl with dreams in her eyes, some girl who will influence not only the men of the future, but the very structure of our culture. . . ."

"Let us take this 35th anniversary as a challenge. Let us become guardians in fact, as well as in our dream. . . . You are the guardian of someone's future. You are Hera, the keeper of the hearth and the sponsor of young girls to come. Be sure that you keep the faith. Put Wesleyan in your will. If you do not have one, make one. When listed, your riches will amaze you! You are the possessor of power without price. Be sure that you direct that power into the channel that will cause you to be remembered and blessed in generations to come."

Three years ago 35th reunioners were labeled "The Bequest Class," with the thought that each year's successive groups would be urged to put Wesleyan in their wills. Julia (Munroe) Woodward, Quincy, Fla., is chairman of her class's bequest program. She has invited seven '34 girls (and not one refused!) to write personal letters to their classmates enclosing the brochure printed with Nelle's beautiful message.

Julia's seven sisters include Eugenia (Peacock) English (writing Conservatory students), Emma (Stephens) Wilson, Mary Gray, Frances (Cook) Sanders, Betty (Hitch) Owens, Sarah (Jones) Pafford, and Charlotte (Tyus) Dekle.

Replies already indicate that the report of this Bequest Class on Alumnae Day, March 29, will be hard to beat, says Julia. She reminds other alumnae that they don't have to wait 35 years to put Wesleyan in their wills!

Keep in Touch!

Enjoy reading the class news? We know you do, from the letters and calls we receive. During the summer we were flooded with class notes—we wish we had room to print them all in this issue. Don't despair if your item is not run here—we'll try for the next issue—or the next. The Wesleyan Alumnae is sent to all alumnae as a token of our interest in you. Your letters, also your contributions to the Loyalty Fund (which help to defray our printing and mailing costs) indicate your interest in your Alma Mater. Let's keep in touch! FKN

The Wesleyan Alumnae

Loyalty Fund . . . 1968

Wesleyan now has alumnae living in every single one of the 50 states! And last year alumnae from all but 19 of these states responded to the Wesleyan Loyalty Fund.

The report given below covers gifts received only in the Alumnae Office, from August 1, 1967 through July 31, 1968. The total of these gifts was $25,490.22, with $6,106.31 of this designated to go to specific funds, such as scholarship funds. The remainder was allocated for Wesleyan's General Endowment Fund. Besides these gifts, $64,810.00 was given through other offices by alumnae. This money was generally in larger gifts, such as property, securities and bequests. The grand total of alumnae support for the school by alumnae was $94,283.22.

"Only the money sent to Wesleyan by Alumnae is covered by this report. There is no way to keep records on the many services performed by our alumnae, such as entertaining alumnae or prospective students. The college is most grateful for these intangibles, as well as for the money which goes to provide that margin of excellence that makes Wesleyan a school to be proud of!", said Jackie (Davis) Richardson, '60, Macon, alumnae association treasurer.

'69 Scholarship

Reve... Sona... Dream

Our dream is a scholarship. A chance for a student to study in France or maybe Spain or Ireland or Denmark.

The scholarship is a memorial to a girl who studied in Paris her Sophomore year. She is Cooki Bogan, who was killed in June of '67 in England in an automobile accident. She was on her way back to the States to finish her last two years at Wesleyan. Cooki entered Wesleyan in '65 and would be graduating this year with the Tri-K class.

The memorial fund is already a reality. Last fall the "Y" board sponsored again "Suppressed Desires Day", with all proceeds given to the Bogan Fund. Personal contributions have been generous, and as a result, we have $600.00. Our goal is $3,000. When we reach this goal, the interest accumulated will be enough to provide a yearly scholarship. All academic expenses will be assumed by this scholarship, as well as transportation to and from the States.

We would like to see it happen by '69, our year, so that we might graduate with the culmination of this dream.

It's an impossible task to provide an insight into the personality of Cooki. May it just be said that she left no moment un-lived.

"For only nineteen or twenty years of life is one big beautiful miracle."

$ $ from Diamonds

Last summer $1200 was received by the college from the estate of Dr. Malcolm H. Dewey, from the sale of diamonds belonging to the late Maybelle (Jones) Dewey, '08, Atlanta, who had requested that the proceeds go for general endowment.

Also, Catherine Craig, '24, Lakeland, Fla., presented a copy of a Raphael painting of a madonna, and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek sent an autographed copy of her speeches, including the one made at Wesleyan in 1965.

Lady of Books

As we use and enjoy the new Lucy Lester Willet Library at Wesleyan, named for an alumna of 1881, our pride and appreciation grow. We take joy also in saluting another alumna for whom a library is named, Rebecca (Caudill) Ayars, '20, distinguished author and member of the President's National Advisory Commission on Libraries. "Out of love and affection", the public library in Cumberland, Harlan County, Ky., was named for her three years ago.

"I was one rung above Andrew Carnegie!" wrote Becky in the Chicago Tribune, jubilant that the mountain folk had voted for a 7-cent library tax, that cooperation had been mammoth, so that miraculously the Rebecca Caudill Library had come into being, opening with shelves filled with books, with records and paintings, even flowers—and a librarian!

"All afternoon people came thru the snow, she recalls. People in important positions in state and regional libraries were there. From the area there were Negroes and whites, there were adults and children, there were townspeople and whole families from up the creeks, some to see, to rejoice, to carry away books. In the first five days, more than 1,000 books had been checked out.

"I never saw a library until I entered college. The only books in our town were our school books and a Bible. The Bible I set out to read thru many times, but never finished because I always got hopelessly mired in the begats. But I shall always be grateful for the beauty and majesty of the King James version of the Bible whose phrases burned themselves into my child's mind and formed the basis for the judging of the literary merits of any printed page.

"But blessings on my father for the school books, particularly for the readers. As I watched the Cumberland area children poring over the many good books available for children today, I remembered, and was grateful to my father that, tho he couldn't provide us with quantities of books, he provided us the best of quality he could find. I was glad for these children for the many riches that are theirs, free."

Becky and her husband, James have contributed funds to the Wesleyan library for the purchase of books in memory of Miss Anne Banks Armand, long-time bursar of the college.

Awards Deadline

Nominations for alumnae awards, for distinguished service to Wesleyan and for distinguished achievement that reflects honor on the college, must be sent to the Alumnae Office by November 30, 1968. Nominations may be submitted by anyone, not just alumnae, and must be accompanied by fully documented statements. Alumnae are asked to send suggestions for Alumnae Trustee and for Member-at-Large of the Board of Managers by that date.

Congratulations!

Children of two alumnae were married on August 16—Sidney, daughter of Elizabeth (Conner) Tucker, '48, and Rufus Dorsey Sams III, son of Nell (Richards) Sams, '40, both of Macon. Groom is at Mercer law school.

To Get New Chair

Wesleyan is one of 33 schools listed by the Callaway Foundation, Inc., LaGrange, Ga., to share in its program to create 40 professorial chairs through the establishment of a $10,000,000 trust fund.

"We are happy that Wesleyan is included in the benefits of the trust fund set up by the Callaway Foundation to enable four-year senior colleges and universities in the state of Georgia, public and private, to add to their faculties outstanding scholars and teachers", said Wesleyan's President Strickland. Dr. Strickland attended the meeting in Atlanta in September when this, the largest private gift to education in Georgia, was announced.

"The Foundation has created this trust to encourage the enrichment of the academic program of senior colleges and graduate schools located in Georgia", stated Fuller E. Callaway, Jr., for whose late father the chairs will be named. "It is our greatest hope that additional private sources—individuals, foundations, and business corporations—will establish similar chairs, for support of education is the most effective means of investing in the future."

Thanks to REGINA (RAMBO) BENSON, Marietta, Ga., class president, and to IRMA (NEAL) LITTLE for the sketches of their classmates, sent after their 60th reunion last May. Of their 27 graduates others present included MYRTLE (SMITH) OLIFF, NEWELL MASON, FRANCES (STEVENS) DESSAU, and 2 "specials", JULIA (HEIDT) FLOYD and BESSIE (COPELAND) GRIFFIN. "At our 50th anniversary there were 9 graduates present, 2 of whom have died since — ALICE (BURDEN) DOMINGOS and MAYBELLE (JONES) DEWEY. Fourteen of the original class have died. The absent members were greatly missed." Irma was honor guest at a 40th anniversary luncheon given by the Flower Garden Club in Atlanta on Sept. 19. Her husband died in Macon while attending her class reunion in 1938. Newell, unable to meet at Wesleyan because of her arthritis, was visited in her home by her classmates. A former teacher, she is interested in current affairs, and has letters published in the Macon papers. Myrtle is active in affairs in Statesboro, Ga., has 4 children, 9 grandchildren, and 2 "greats". Her husband died four years ago.

HATTIE GRACE (SUBERS) RAHN, Columbus, Ga., wrote with her Loyalty Fund donation that she had just returned from five months in the Philippines and the Orient. She brought her eldest great-grandson, 14, home with her to attend high school, and hopes her girls "coming along" will attend Wesleyan. Renato Tagay, who, through her gave his books on the Orient to the Wesleyan library in honor of the Soong sisters, has been appointed a director of the World Bank in Manila; he, his wife and 12 children are "wonderful friends" to our alumna's family in the islands.

'39 next reunion in '69
MARGARET (LATIMER) STEETLE: "After 19 years I have moved back to the 'old home place' in Geneva, Ala. The pleasure . . . is great . . . It is also a little nearer to Macon, to which I hope to return once in a while . . . My son, Mark, graduated from Auburn U last year and got his commission in the Air Force at the same time . . . he is stationed at Mather AFB, California, getting training as a navigator. Social work, in which I've been engaged for 22 years, is fascinating.

ANN MARIA DOMINGOS is the new president of the Macon Writers Club.

LOUISE (WADSWORTH) JEFFCOAT, Columbia, S. C., forwards a Loyalty Fund check and note from KATHERINE (McCONNELL) ROCK, of North Beach, Md. Writes the latter: "When I get my nine kids through college, perhaps I can do more. I have two in college now, and will have one more per year starting for the next three years! My husband died last year." "Surely Wesleyan must have a golden book for this kind of contributor", comments Louise.

Sympathy to George and FLORA ET-TA (SWAIN) SIMS, Waycross, Ga., on the loss of their daughter, Kitty, in an auto accident in February.

'43 next reunion in '73
Congratulations to ELIZABETH

(GLASS) DRAUGHON, Macon, on the marriage of her son, John Albert, to Sally Carroll Hines, Aug. 31.

'44 next reunion in '69
KATHRYN (TERRY) HALL, Macon, has a son, Denny, stationed in Vietnam, on leave of absence from Harvard. He'll be home for Christmas.

'45 next reunion in '70
INA (BLAIR) NAU, Barbourville, Ky., spent six weeks studying in Mexico last summer. "I am having the time of my life teaching Spanish to 135 high school students," she writes with her Loyalty Fund check. "It's hard for Bill and me to believe that our son Fritz is a junior at the University of Georgia. He likes Athens as well as I liked Macon twenty-three years ago. Our Suzy is now fifteen, and I'm hoping she will choose Wesleyan for her college."

'46 next reunion in '71
DOROTHY (WILSON) McARTHUR, Macon, is the new director of the Bibb County Department of Family and Children Services, having served as principal supervisor. Dorothy, native of Albany, came to Macon in 1962. Her two sons are Stephen, 15, and Neil, 11.

JACQUELINE (LAMM) SOUDER, Macon, has three daughters. Her husband, R. C. Souder, was recently elected treasurer of Riverside Cemetery, which has established a million dollar perpetual care fund. Vice-president of First National Bank and Trust, in Macon, he is a deacon in Highland Hills Baptist Church and serves on various boards.

MARY ANNE (PATTON) BUTLER, Columbus, Ga., active in community work, has joined the staff of Goodwill Industries of the Chattahoochee Valley, Inc., as director of Community Relations and Development.

HELEN (MATTHEWS) HARDING, Jacksonville, Fla., is teaching school. Her husband retired recently from the Navy.

ANN (CARLTON) BLANCHARD has moved from Tampa to Jacksonville, where her husband, Richard, a trustee of Wesleyan, has been appointed pastor of the First Methodist Church. We are happy that their son Rick, 18, came home in June after a year in the hospital. Considerably recovered from paralysis induced by a broken neck in a diving accident, he entered Jacksonville U this fall without graduation from high school. Carol, 17, (she plans to enter Wesleyan next year) and Emily, 15, attend Lee High.

'48 next reunion in '70
Sympathy to LOUISE (STANLEY) DOUGLAS, Opa-Locka, Fla., on the death of her mother.

'49 next reunion in '70
MARY (CREETY) NIKAS is founder and president of Interiors for Business, Inc., in Atlanta. Last year she won an "Atlanta Beautiful" award for commissioning one of the earliest uses of fine art in business interiors in this area, a 30-foot mural in Atlanta Envelope Co. Her son George is 15, Kathy is 17. Her joy, says Mary, is her mountain home at Rabun Gap, her deepest concern conservation. She is a charter member of the Georgia Conservancy, also helped to found the Arts Festival of Atlanta.

Sympathy to BETTY ATWATER, Macon, on the death of her father in June.

next reunion in '71

JUDITH WILHELM, Fairfax, Va. (to Mrs. Eschmann): "I was looking through The Wesleyan Alumnae, February, 1968, for about the tenth time reminiscing about the days when I lived and attended classes at Wesleyan. I won't ever forget those wonderful four years. I can hardly believe I've been gone from the campus almost a year now; but I'm certainly convinced when I read all the marriages of my former classmates and the various jobs and positions the others hold. Since last June I've been employed with one of the Washington, D. C. area's leading department stores — the Hecht Co. — working in the display department . . . also the fashion coordinator . . . My background of art at Wesleyan has helped me tremendously . . . (See Marriages) . . . I do enjoy the alumnae magazine . . . Thank you and Wesleyan for being so good to me . . ."

A LETTER

She Is Loyal

From Georgia Elizabeth Wilder, '03, Atlanta: "... You must not judge my loyalty by the size of my check (for the Loyalty Fund) or my tardiness in sending it, but sickness often delays one's good intentions. No one can ever say that I'm not loyal, even tho I can't claim my diploma, for even then, 1903, necessity made me begin my teaching career. Good luck always, and God's blessings on Wesleyan."

A LETTER

Very Much at Home

Dear Elaine,

We are delighted our daughter has chosen Wesleyan for further education. The friendliness and interest shown by you and the students when we were down for a visit certainly didn't discourage Martha. May we say thank you again for your warm hospitality? You made us all feel very much at home and we enjoyed every minute of our stay on campus.

Enclosed you will find check, a small contribution toward work on the new library. We look forward to the completion of a fine addition to Wesleyan.

While in Milledgeville in December we had the pleasure of seeing you, Elaine, and Mrs. Strickland on television from Macon. You can imagine Martha's excitement, not to mention ours . . .

College Park, Georgia

Europe in June? Let's go!

Those who participated in the 1968 Wesleyan Alumnae Tour of Europe responded so enthusiastically that we have arranged with the same airline (Sabena) to offer this tour next year for the same price! It will take place in June instead of April, in order that alumnae who cannot get away during the school-year may be able to go.

The countries to be visited include Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, France, and England. The price: $895.00 per person, including all first-class hotels with private baths! Mark those dates: June 8-29, 1969.

Enclosed is my deposit of $90.00 (or $180.00 if deferred payment is requested)
